Megan C. Carrier

Megan Carrier is an attorney with Sheehan Phinney, where she has practiced since 2011, focusing on civil litigation and land use law. She represents clients in state and federal courts, administrative proceedings, arbitration, and mediation, handling matters involving employment, insurance coverage, contracts, torts, and land use disputes. Her land use practice includes guiding developers and property owners through local planning and zoning approvals, as well as appeals of land use board decisions. She has extensive experience with residential and commercial developments, including affordable and workforce housing, substance use treatment facilities, and recovery residences.

Megan earned her JD, magna cum laude, from the University of New Hampshire Franklin Pierce School of Law and her BA, summa cum laude, from Wheaton College. Her professional honors include the New Hampshire Bar Foundation's 2021 Kirby Award, the New Hampshire Union Leader's 2023 Forty Under 40, and recognition as the 2026 Manchester Lawyer of the Year for Litigation–Land Use and Zoning by Best Lawyers in America. She has also been recognized by Best Lawyers in America in multiple litigation practice areas and as a Rising Star in Business Litigation by New England Super Lawyers. Megan is admitted to practice in New Hampshire and Massachusetts and before the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.
